

Paper 4: Revised Pathways A-C Paper Instructions

Based on my feedback, the feedback of your peers, and the insights you gained from reading papers written by your peers, you will complete a revision of the Pathways A-C Paper, following the same instructions as in the initial assignment but with TWO major additions.

First, you will add a page to the beginning of the report that includes a couple of paragraphs explaining what you chose to focus on revising. Some good things to include are:

- What feedback was particularly useful and helped to improve your report?
- What did you learn from reading other reports that helped you tackle your report with a new perspective?
- What sections have undergone high revision?
- In what ways are you pleased with how the revised version contributes to the narrative of your report?

The main idea is to reflect on what you thought improved, and why you think that has improved.

Second, you will add an Acknowledgments section before the References and after the Figures and Tables, where you will thank your lab group for their help in gathering and analyzing data, your anonymous peer reviewers for taking the time to read your paper and give comments. (Feel free to add anyone else, like any Writing Center assistants, Virtual GEP tutors, as appropriate who have helped you in better carrying out either the research project or communication of your findings).

I encourage making an appointment with the Writing Center to review a draft of your paper – I receive notifications of these appointments if you say it's for my course, and I will reward those who meet with a Writing Center tutor one token for the effort (let me know if you do, they sometimes are delayed sharing this information with me).

Submit as a hard copy, along with your Paper2 hardcopy with my feedback. This is preferentially due by Week 12W start of lab, but you have the option of requesting a free extension to Week 13T start of class (ask by the Week 12W deadline).
